264. The period under review has witnessed the conclusion of a number of such agreements, including a Malaysia-Viet Nam commercial agreement for offshore hydrocarbon development in the Malay basin. The period has also marked the emergence/persistence of a few cases where non-living marine resource development has pointed to the need for joint resource development agreements or the resolution of jurisdictional issues. These cases include the Bakassi peninsula in the south-eastern Niger delta (Nigeria and Cameroon), the Zafiro field also in the south-eastern Niger delta (Equatorial Guinea and Nigeria), and the northern South China Sea (China and Viet Nam) (see para. 369).
